CHARTERSHIP REGISTRATION AUTHORITY - PARTICIPATING ORGANISATIONS.

UK CHAMBER of SHIPPING

TRINITY HOUSE

1. WHAT IS CHARTERSHIP?

Historically, a 'Charter' is a Royal Warrant – granted by the Crown (State) – permitting an activity or practice to be carried out by certain individuals, a town, city or region. Chartership was usually awarded following evidence of exceptional service, capability or loyalty to the State of Crown.

A commercial Charter is an historic right - granted only to exceptional craftsmen - evidencing their right to carry out their occupation unhindered and under the authority of the Crown. Receipt of a professional Charter represented the ultimate accolade that could be awarded by the State to a craftsman or artisan and could be held out as conclusive evidence of their competence and skill.

Chartership has been described as 'the gold standard' of personal achievement and professional development. There is no higher standard in the world of professional and technical achievement. Consequently, it is not a standard that will be achievable by every aspirant.

2. WHO CAN APPLY

Before an application for Chartered Master Mariner status will be considered the applicant must be able to demonstrate that they hold, or have held, the highest level of maritime command qualification that their State is legally able to issue. For mercantile States that are STCW compliant, the current minimum qualification for meeting the application essential criteria is an STCW II/2 Master (Unlimited) Certificate of Competency. For the avoidance of doubt, STCW II/2 Master (Unlimited) shall mean any equivalent predecessor and / or its successor. Non-mercantile high-level command qualifications may, in certain circumstances, be considered. For the RN, this will be CQ1 or the highest-level qualification in the specific branch. It is, however, for the applicant to make the case for equivalency if offering State issued high-level command qualifications that are non-STCW compliant.

Regardless of the circumstances, any decision regarding the acceptability of non-STCW (or successor) compliant qualifications will always lie with the Court of the Honourable Company of Master Mariners.

All qualified Ship's Masters (or military Commanding Officers) who can demonstrate a combination of at least 10 years of experience in command of ships and/or in the Approved Practice of Maritime Related Operations shall be entitled to apply for registration as Chartered Master Mariners (hereinafter referred to by the post-nominal designation of CMMar). The Registration Authority may exercise discretion in granting CMMar status to applicants who have demonstrated exceptional capability over a period of less than 10 years.

3. CHARTERSHIP IN INDUSTRY

Over the last 50 years, many technical professions have implemented their own higher-competence standards specifically directed towards recognising enhanced ability, superior individual skills, specialist knowledge and practitioner development.

Measurement of standards is now the norm in professional institutions, with the associated award schemes requiring input from eminent practitioners. Higher-competence awards are strictly controlled and tightly regulated by the external validation of external assessors and oversight from professional standards committees. Thus, the highest honour that most technical professions can offer in recognition of personal development is the bestowal of Chartered status.

The use of industry recognised Chartership is now universally construed as denoting higher learning and peer-recognised excellence. Inherent in industry, Chartership programmes are the acknowledgement that excellence manifests in many forms – therefore, Chartership is approved and awarded based on individual achievement, not on any prescribed tick-box matrix – although there are guidelines for the awarding authorities to follow.

4. WHAT IS A CHARTERED MASTER MARINER?

If we are to begin defining the qualities required to achieve the status of Chartered Master Mariner, it applies to maritime industry professionals who are externally assessed as being: inspirational; high achievers; leaders; trend-setters and; developmental drivers - in all relevant areas.

Chartership is appropriate for those who have risen beyond the need for prescribed qualification routes that are defined by specific goals and objectivised career pathways.

It is not the intention of the Chartership project to simply re-define what it is to be a 'higher-spec' ship's Master. This would be nothing more than extending STCW criteria and applying the same methodology. If that were the driver behind Chartership, then there would be nothing special about the award or status as it would be achievable by every aspirant, both as right and as the natural expectation of their career development.

5. APPLICANT QUALITIES.

Chartership is looking for 'exceptional' performance and individual contributions to the industry. It is for applicants to define what is 'exceptional' and show how they are 'outstanding' in their workplace and the wider environment. How applicants can justify and demonstrate these requirements will help assessors decide upon their proximity to these criteria and, ultimately, their suitability for Chartership.

For the avoidance of doubt, simply 'being good at your job' or 'not making mistakes' will be insufficient to satisfy the strong evidential requirements necessary for proving suitability for Chartered status.

There is no 'prescribed' route to Chartership and development towards acquiring Chartered status is not about being guided or spoon-fed. Chartership is more likely to be achieved by those who have taken control and ownership of their lives and assumed responsibility for their personal development, goals, ambitions and life objectives.

Individuals who want Chartership should be sufficiently self-aware to know when they are deficient in certain work-skill areas and be self-motivated enough to take the necessary steps to remedy these weaknesses, perhaps by seeking mentorship for themselves, rather than waiting for someone else to direct them or develop a growth path that they might follow. This is the type of individual for whom chartership is designed. It is not, and should not be viewed as, an automatic step or expectation by all who acquire a Master (Unlimited) CoC or military command qualifications.

It then holds good that individuals who have grown to truly believe in themselves and demonstrate this by a personal ability to develop themselves through self-motivated and self-directed means – which can be demonstrated in numerous ways – can be said to have reached a level of eminence whereby they can stand upon their own cognisance and be held out as an example to others as the best the maritime industry has to offer.

These, amongst others, are the personal qualities that may be expected of someone who aspires to become a Chartered Master Mariner.

6. OVERVIEW OF THE CHARTERSHIP ORGANISATIONAL PROCESSES

The following diagram shows details the organisations and the links between them that support the Chartered Master Mariner programme.

The Nautical Institute is the Maritime Professional organisation with global credentials, which has been appointed by the HCMM to undertake the administrative, auditing and vetting functions associated with applications for Chartered Master Mariner status.

The Institute is a non-governmental organisation (NGO) with consultative status at the International Maritime Organisation (IMO). Its aim is to represent seafarers' and practical maritime professionals' views.

As a representative body, the Institute fulfils this role in many different ways. Membership is open to those of qualification and experience. Its technical committees represent professional opinion and feed back to the industry's decision-making bodies.

The Institute's aim is 'to provide the strongest possible professional focus, dedicated to improving standards of those involved in control of seagoing craft, while maintaining the Institute as an international centre of nautical excellence'.

The Honourable Company of Master Mariners and the Institute jointly execute its Chartership granting functions and enjoy a very close professional relationship.

All enquiries regarding Chartership applications and processing MUST be directed to the Nautical Institute. Details are provided below.

7.4 INSTITUTE OF MARINE ENGINEERING, SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY (IMarEST)

IMarEST is The Institute of Marine Engineering, Science and Technology. It is an international professional body and learned society for all marine professionals. IMarEST is the first Institute to bring together marine engineers, scientists and technologists into one international multi-disciplinary professional body.

9. CHARTERSHIP ORGANISATIONAL PROCESS – APPLICATION PATHWAY.

The numbered boxes in the diagram above relate to the processes being undertaken in the following flow chart (Figure 3).

10. THE APPLICATION PROCESS

Before you begin!

Applicants are cautioned against entering the application process without giving serious consideration as to whether they are likely to succeed in achieving this high honour.

In deciding whether to engage with the application process (see diagram 4 below) – which may take many months to complete – aspirants should realistically assess their:

- personal development beyond the norm for mariners
- development of own professional competency standards
- wider skills base - beyond those required to hold a superior command qualification
- unique capabilities that set them apart from other command-qualified mariners
- contribution to the development of other mariners
- personal impact within and unique contribution to the maritime sphere and the wider industry

Having considered each of the above, applicants are advised to give careful consideration as to whether they are likely to be successful in their application. Some will be disappointed as only the strongest applications will attain registration as Chartered Master Mariner. For those who succeed, they may be confident in knowing and being able to prove that they have been thoroughly examined and are peer recognised as examples of professional excellence within the maritime industry.

The following table explains, using the numbers given in figure 3, what is happening with your application at each stage of the process.

11. WHAT HAPPENS TO YOUR COMPLETED APPLICATION FORM

Once an application has been received (step 1 in Figures 2 and 3), it is subject to scrutiny to ensure all essential elements have been complied with.

Your PART 1 application will undergo initial filtering to make sure you satisfy the essential criteria (see Section 2 and step 2 in Figures 2 and 3), which assesses whether you meet the requirement of a Master (Unlimited) CoC or military command qualification or the internationally equivalent CeC plus sufficient higher-status employment experience.

Applications will be rejected if they fail to meet the essential criteria. There are no exceptions to this provision.

12. CoC / CeC CERTIFICATE AND ACADEMIC QUALIFICATION VALIDATION.

Applicants who can present original certification to HCMM, NI, MNTB, UKCS, IMarEST or other Registration Authority organisations may do so. The organisation will make a charge for certificate copying, witnessing and countersigning.

All other applications MUST be accompanied by notarised copies of the original certification. Costs incurred in having certificates notarised shall be borne by the applicant.

Maritime certification and education qualifications WILL be authenticated by the issuing authority. Where documentation is found to lack authenticity, the relevant issuing authority shall be notified. There will be NO EXCEPTIONS to this provision.

Your application, if it meets essential criteria, will be assessed against a set of objective standards set by the HCMM and Registration Authority. These are:

- Desired criteria
- Additional activity (e.g. charitable work) including contribution to society
- Personal statement parameters
- Industry (and RA acceptable) Referees

Guidance for filling in each section of the PART 1 application form is included on the application form.

12.1 Referees and Testimonial Guidance.

If you satisfy these criteria, your referee(s) will be contacted and asked to provide statements in support of your application. These references are a vital part of the assessment procedure and you should:

- Seek out and get permission from your chosen referees BEFORE you fill in your application form;
- Provide as much detail as possible about your referee, so that the assessing team can
 - Verify who they are;
 - Communicate easily with them.

Failure to provide details of appropriate referees may result in your application being delayed or, in certain cases, being rejected altogether.

12.2 How many Referees are needed?

Provide one referee, if you are an officer or an equivalent member of the following organisations:

- Professional Fellowships from a Technical / Maritime related organisation;
- City Livery;
- Freeman of a City Livery Company or the City of London;
- Trinity House EB or YB;
- HCMM / Nautical Institute / IMarEST / Registration Authority organisation Officer, or similar

All other applicants MUST provide two referees, one of whom should:

- a. Be someone of the category listed above, and /or
- b. Maritime college or university Principal or head of maritime department, and / or
- c. Senior executive or director of current employer and / or
- d. Executive or director of professional association or network group and / or
- e. Someone of standing who is likely to be known to the Registration Authority organisations and / or
- f. Maritime Regulatory Authority officer and / or
- g. Legal professional or religious leader who has personal knowledge of the applicant and can vouch for their character.

The remaining referee (where 2 is specified) should be: your current employer; Marine Superintendent, or equivalent; Master of your current vessel; College or University principle or Head of maritime department.

The Registration Authority will contact the nominated referee directly and ask them to provide written personal references.

Applicants should not submit references with their application form.

IMPORTANT NOTE: Failure to provide suitable referees may prompt a reminder. Further failure will cause the application to fail.

13. WHAT HAPPENS IF MY APPLICATION PASSES ASSESSMENT AND VALIDATION?

There are two (2) components to the Chartership application process:

- Initial Assessment: Based on the evidence provided in your application form, and
- Further Assessment: Based on personal interview before a Registration Authority panel.

Your completed application form and the information contained within it should be sufficient to allow the initial objective assessment of your application. Assuming this is successful, you will be notified and advised that you are required to attend for a Professional Review Interview (PRI) before a Registration Authority (RA) appointed panel.

The range of dates and times for your PRI will normally be offered and, so far as possible, the RA will try to accommodate your work / life schedule. Some flexibility is expected of the candidate to make this possible. PRIs are conducted by VTC. This enables interviews to be conducted with candidates and assessors joining from anywhere in the world. Exceptionally, the interview may be conducted face-to-face at an appropriate venue.

The applicant is expected to make a short (five-minute) presentation to the panel – outlining their reasoning for applying for CMMar, including any career or professional highlights/activities that evidence this. Supporting material is welcome but not essential. This is the candidate’s opportunity to emphasise their chartership credentials and should be used wisely. Screen-sharing will be available for VTC interviews. Candidates will be stopped after five minutes if necessary.

The PRI assessments, generally, do not last longer than one hour and fifteen minutes.

Following the PRI, the interviewing panel will assess the applicant performance and the evidence they provide at the interview and will make a recommendation to the Registration Authority.

The applicant should not seek an opinion from the interview panel at this stage as they will not be given one. Diagram 3 (above) makes clear that there are several stages that still have to be gone through before a final decision is reached.

Depending on when the Registration Authority and HCMM Court meets, notification of results of the PRI may take several weeks. If the applicant has not received notification within 10 weeks of the PRI date, they may contact the Nautical Institute at Chartership@nautinst.org

All costs associated with attending the PRI are borne by the applicant.

14. CONDUCT FOLLOWING SUCCESSFUL GRANT OF CHARTERED STATUS

Once Chartered status has been granted, that is not the end of the matter. Chartership is a privilege and, as with any privilege, there are accompanying obligations, these include:

- i. Annual registration fee paid to The Nautical Institute by Chartership holder
- ii. Periodic review of Chartership holder’s CPD (usually every 5 years)
- iii. CMMar holder MUST maintain and record his / her CPD. The CPD is the means of proof of the Registrant’s professional excellence and continued engagement with the industry and is therefore required beyond retirement from full-time work. (More details are provided in the Rules of the Register).
- iv. Continuing obligation to observe the Chartered Master Mariner codes of ethics and professional conduct.

As with all grants of privilege, there is an absolute obligation to behave in an ethical, decent and professional manner and to respect, honour, uphold and preserve the reputation and integrity of the awarding organisation(s).

Where a Chartership holder has been found to breach these strict obligations, the awarding authority reserves the right to withdraw the privilege of Chartered status from any individual. The right to rescind Chartered status following a breach of the Codes of Conduct and Ethics is enshrined in the Royal Charter held by the Honourable Company of Master Mariners and in the disciplinary paragraphs of the Rules of the Register.

15. WHAT HAPPENS IF MY APPLICATION FAILS OR I HAVE AN ISSUE WITH THE PROCESS?

Applicants should keep in mind that the award of Chartered Master Mariner status is NOT something that will naturally follow on from their acquiring Master (Unlimited) certification or such other high-level command qualification as may, from time to time, be approved by the HCMM Court. It is not a right or entitlement that may be achieved simply by completing the application form and neither is it an accolade that can be achieved by providing evidence of long service.

Inability to meet the demanding criteria required for the award of Chartership should not detract from the respect and high standing that the STCW Master (Unlimited) certification - or such other high-level command qualification as may be approved by the HCMM Court - properly commands. To believe otherwise is to ignore hundreds of years of knowledge, experience and industry development upon which that qualification is founded and would be disrespectful of the training that goes into acquiring it.

Applicants who do not meet the criteria for Chartership should not feel that they have 'failed'. Rather, they either haven't made their case sufficiently well, or need to develop in certain areas in order to meet the higher personal specifications that all Chartership holders must demonstrate.

Those awarded Chartership will enjoy equivalent professional status to all other professional Chartership holders. The award would have limited value within the maritime industry and would not command reciprocal respect if the qualifying criteria were not as demanding as that required from other professional bodies.

Chartered Master Mariner status is the ultimate Marque of Excellence within the maritime industry and, as such, it will be awarded to those who can demonstrate: excellence in professional practice; acquisition of higher-level skills; outstanding personal achievement and, importantly; that aspirants have provided some quantifiable benefit to the wider industry. Additionally, Chartered status evidences personal development and growth both over time and in a range of disciplines, therefore not all applicants will meet the demanding criteria.

Where an applicant feels that their application has not been properly or fairly considered, they will have the right to appeal and explain why their application should be reconsidered. Those who wish to make an appeal should notify The Nautical Institute as soon as possible, following notification that their application has failed to proceed.

An application cannot be "withdrawn" once a PRI has been undertaken as an unsuccessful applicant will be given a period (usually three years) before another application will be accepted.

16. APPLICATION APPEALS

16.1 Appeal Notification – Time Limit.

The TIME LIMIT for submitting an appeal notification is 60 days from the date of notification that the application has failed to proceed. Extensions to this time limit may be considered in exceptional circumstances.

For the avoidance of doubt, it will be for the appellant to prove that their application (either the Application Assessment or the Professional Review Interview) has been conducted:

- Improperly;
- Unfairly or incorrectly;
- With undue bias or prejudice.

16.2 Appeal Process.

Upon receipt of appeal notification, The Nautical Institute will provide ALL relevant application and assessment documentation to the Registration Authority, who will instruct an independent appeals panel (which will comprise at least 2 industry professionals plus one legal advisor) to review both the application and the appellant reasons.

The appeal will be undertaken as soon as possible following receipt of notification. The appellant will be notified accordingly of the review panel decision.

Where the appellant still considers that they have just cause to pursue an appeal, a second and final appeal may be made to a session of the Honourable Company of Master Mariners Court.

Notification of a second appeal MUST be made within 60 days of receipt of the first review panel decision. The second appeal will be made at the next sitting of the HCMM Court (normally 4 sittings per annum)

For the avoidance of doubt, the decision of the HCMM Court is final in all matters of appeal. In making their application for Chartered Master Mariner status, the applicant acknowledges and accepts this procedure for making appeals.

Failure of a first or second appeal does not prevent the applicant from making further applications for Chartered status. However, following rejection of a second appeal, further applications from the same candidate will not be entertained for at least 36 calendar months.

17. INFORMATION, SECURITY AND DATA PROTECTION

17.1 Use of information given in application forms

Information provided by applicants as part of the application process will be used only for informing the application and no other use will be made of any information or materials provided.

Neither the HCMM nor any of the Registration Authority organisations will share personal information with third parties.

17.2 Applicant consent to use information provided

In signing the application form, candidates for Chartered Master Mariner stated expressly give their permission for the HCMM, The Nautical Institute and The Registration Authority (and associated organisations) to use the information provided by the candidate in any way that is deemed necessary to expedite the application. The applicants also give their permission for above named organisations to seek confirmation as to authenticity and validity of any documentation provided as part of the application process.

17.3 Retention of data and supporting materials

Paper copies of all live applications will be securely held for the duration of the application process and then destroyed. Electronically scanned copies will be retained by the HCMM Chartered Master Mariner Registration Authority for so long as Chartered status is maintained by the successful applicant.

All PRIs conducted by VTC will be recorded and the recording retained securely for up to 12 months for audit and quality control purposes. The recording will not be shared and only information pertinent to the final assessment will be made available to the Registration Authority in order to validate the recommendation made by the Assessors. The detail of the conversation between assessors and candidate will remain confidential.

18. FEES

The schedule of latest applicable fees is available on The Nautical Institute website. These should be carefully checked before submitting an application.

For details of the latest application fees, please check the Nautical Institute website at:
<https://www.nautinst.org/en/CPD/chartered-master-mariner/Application-Guidance.cfm>

Only the initial application fee should be submitted with the application.

Costs incurred in having qualifications or other supporting evidence notarised or witnessed by appropriate Registration Authority related organisations (see s.11 above) will be for the candidates own account. Registration Authority witnessing is significantly cheaper than having the documents notarised.

18.1 Delinquent fee payments

When an applicant for Chartership status is notified that first registration fees are due, payment shall be made promptly. The application process cannot progress until the required fees are paid.

Following first registration, notification that annual fees are due for payment will be made to Charter holders approximately one month before they fall due. It is the responsibility of Charter holders to ensure that payment is made at the earliest opportunity after notification is received.

Where fees are not received by the due date, no more than two additional notifications will be made using the contact information provided by the registrant. Persistent non-payment will result in the registrant being suspended from the Chartership register and forfeiting any rights or privileges that attach to Chartered Master Mariner status.
